> Supreme Court Thwarts a Scheme Mulct a Railroad Company-The County Courts.

The Appellate Court decided yesterday, in the case of Charles Fred Kissel against Zimri Lewis and others, that a special judge cannot impose a fine for contempt of a judgment rendered by him unless he is again appointed as such special judge. The case was originally tried in Hamilton county, and because of objection the regular judge was replaced temporarily by Ira W. Christian as special judge. Christian entered a judgment against Kissel, forbidding him from selling liquor either directly or indirectly, in his garden north of Fall creek, in this city. When Lewis afterward complained that Kissel violated this injunction Mr. Christian fined Kissell $300 for contempt of court. In reversing this judgment yesterday Judge Robinson, of the Appellate Court, said that if there was any contempt it was of the court and not of a special judge, and that therefore Christian had no right to enter a judgment imposing a fine.

In the case of Edward A. Shedd and Southern Indiana and the Evansville & others against James A. Webb and another the Supreme Court thwarted a scheme to compel the Lake Shore & Michigan Southjusted, and it is stated that the Southern Indiana will again use the Evansville & ern Railroad Company to pay a second time for a part of its right of way. In 1853 It is said the Southern Indiana will be the company that built the road acquired running its trains into Washington before New Year's, and that Elnora will be made a 100-foot strip of swamp land from the State, and the quarter section of which this was a part was afterward sold withsuperintendent of motive power of the out any mention being made of the strip Pennsylvania, succeeding F. The suits were filed Oct. 13, 1900, and nothing more than demurrers have been filed. Noel & Lahr, attorneys for the plaintiffs, have several times pressed the suit, but at the request of Taggart's and Holt's attorneys. Judge Leathers was lenient and granted them continuances. No briefs have ever been filed, in order that a ruling might be made on the demurrers, as to whether or not complaints were good. The cases were to have been tried in November if the pleadings were properly filed, and the attorneys for both sides were satisfied. The affidavits for change of venue came as a surprise. Judge Leathers told the attorneys to agree on a court and he would grant the change. The wisest of the managers of the steam roads admit that they have a difficult problem to solve in meeting the competition of the electric lines. The Big Four has demonstrated that it does not pay to put on additional short trains and reduce the rate, and has taken off six trains on the Indianapolis and Cleveland division, running between Indianapolis and the gas belt territory, assigning as a reason that freight traffic is heavy and the trains interfered with the movement of the fast passenger and freight trains. The most was carried did not yield revenue to justify continuance of the short service. The same points can be made with the Louisville division of the Pennsylvania lines, the Columbus and Seymour trains not doing enough business to justify running them, consequently in the near future one of the trains each way will be taken off and the other run through to Louisville, making one more train daily between Indianapolis and Louisville in both directions. The above statement does not apply only to Indianapolis, but to many other cities where the steam roads are coming into competition with trolley lines. Chance for promotion and increase of | The Maine Central tried the experiment of reducing its passenger rates to meet the trolley competition, and after a few months' trial it was found that while it

It will not be the first time that such a condition has existed in Western territory. For years the plan was in operation, and it proved one of the most fruitful sources of demoralization that ever existed. Yet it was with the utmost difficulty the roads were able to get rid of it even temporarily, and now they are confronted with it again in a way which seems impossible for them to prevent. Changes on the Southern Pacific. The announcement that E. H. Harriman had assumed the presidency of the Southern Pacific Company, coupled with the appointment of Julius Kruttschnitt as his assistant, was received in San Francisco with considerable surprise, for the elevation of the fourth vice president to be the chief administrative officer of the corporation had not been considered. It is understood that Mr. Kruttschnitt will assume most of the duties and responsibilities of the president, as all officers heretofore reporting to the president have been ordered to report to him. E. H. Fitzhugh, who was recently appointed assistant to President Hays, will soon return East, H. E. Huntington, first vice president of the Southern Pacific, said in an interview that he would not again take an active part in Southern Pacific affairs. Although retaining the title of first vice president he was devoting his time, he said, to his private affairs. Mr. Huntington confirms the report that the Pacific Improvement Company has sold its entire holdings in the
